Mathilde Liqueurs

As master distiller at the New York Distilling Company, Allen Katz is responsible for Perry's Tot and Dorothy Parker gins. (Though delicious, they're a bit above the price limit for this story.) So we trust his judgment when he vouches for Mathilde's all-natural liqueurs made in France by the folks behind Pierre Ferrand Cognac. The orange, cassis (blackcurrant), framboise (raspberry), pêche (peach) and poire (pear) will set you back only $22, and each makes a great Kir Royale or French Martini.
